The Nebraska Center on Reflective Practice (NCRP) through the Nebraska Resource Project for Vulnerable Young Children at UNL-CCFL offers reflective practice training utilizing the Facilitated Attuned Interactions (FAN) model created by the Erikson Institute's Fussy Baby Network. NCRP provides a comprehensive training program that consists of classroom training in conjunction with mentoring, consultation, and organizational support.

The cost is $1,490 per individual. The sequence of the FAN training program is:

- Pre-Training Reflective Consultation
  Each training participant will participate in four, one-hour group reflective consultation sessions prior to Initial Training. The purpose of Pre-Training Reflective Consultation is to provide the training participant with an initial understanding of how the FAN model is utilized. The Pre-Training Reflective Consultation sessions will occur through Zoom video conferencing. The Pre-Training Reflective Consultation sessions began in August 2022, two months prior to Initial Training.
- Initial Training
  Initial Training is a two-day training that provides the fundamental basics of reflective practice. Upon completion, attendees will be able to begin utilizing reflective practice in their daily interactions as they continue through the mentoring program.
- Post Training Mentoring and Consultation
  Each training participant will engage in four group mentoring and consultation sessions and two individual sessions with an NCRP trainer or mentor on a monthly basis. Mentoring and consultation builds trainees' capacities to provide reflective practice. Additional individual or group mentoring sessions will occur at the discretion of the NCRP trainer. The mentoring sessions will occur through Zoom video conferencing.
- Advanced Training
  Advanced Training is a one-day training which focuses on fine tuning the trainees' reflective practice skills by focusing on their experiences since Initial Training.
- Certification of Completion
  The NCRP will facilitate securing a certification of completion from the Erikson Institute once the training attendee has completed the required elements, which are:
  - 2-day Initial Training
  - At least five mentoring sessions
  - Six FAN Reflective Learning Tools
  - 1-day Advanced Training
