Agenda items 4 and 5 were removed from the agenda as revised on 1.15.2020

6. REGULATION REVIEW, DISCUSSION, AND RECOMMENDATIONS (172 NAC 156, AND 157) REGULATIONS STATUS UPDATE (172 NAC 155 AND 158)

Bruhn provided an overview of the history relating to proposed revisions to 172 NAC 156 and 157. Lukin reported that APA is willing to work with the Board and be an advocate for adopting their Code of Conduct.

10:26 a.m. 1 member of the Public entered the Licensure Unit's Conference Room

Lukin continued that in some states, but not all, regulations adopt the APA Code of Conduct. The APA Code of Conduct is current under revision, and all parties need to put aside personal beliefs.

Sections 003(A); 004, 014, and 015 were reviewed. The board indicated that these sections need to be consistent.

004-003. COMPETENCE. A psychologist ~~shall~~must not provide services or use techniques for which he or she is not trained or experienced. Unprofessional conduct ~~in the practice of practice of psychology~~ shall include~~includes~~, but is not limited to:

(A) 004-01-Failure to consider a client as an individual and imposing on the client any stereotypes of behavior, values or roles related to ~~age, gender, sex, religion, race, disability, nationality, or sexual orientation~~ race, color, religion, sex, disability, marital status, national origin, age, familial status, and ancestry which would unreasonably interfere with the objectivity provision of psychological services to the client.

004. DISCRIMINATION. Psychologists must provide professional assistance to clients or patients without discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, disability, marital status, national origin, age, familial status, and ancestry.

It was suggested that section 004 could read: Psychologists must provide professional assistance to clients or patients without discrimination in accordance with state statute, rather than including all the current classifications. If so then 003(A) would need to be changed.

014. Respect for People's Rights and Dignity. Psychologists respect the dignity and worth of all people, and the rights of individuals to privacy, confidentiality, and self-determination. Psychologists are aware that special safeguards may be necessary to protect the rights and welfare of persons or communities whose vulnerabilities impair autonomous decision making. Psychologists are aware of and respect cultural, individual, and role differences, and consider these factors when working with clients. Psychologists try to eliminate the effect on their work of biases based on those factors, and they do not knowingly participate in or condone activities of others based upon such prejudices.

015. ADOPTION OF THE AMERICAN PSYCHOLOGICAL ASSOCIATION'S ETHICAL PRINCIPLES AND CODE OF CONDUCT. The Board adopts the Ethical Principles of Psychologists and Code of Conduct of the American Psychological Association (APA), effective January 1, 2017, as the Code of Conduct under Neb. Rev. Stat. § 38-3105 except for the following sections:

(A) Principle E, Respect for People's Rights and Dignity;

(B) Section 2.01(b), Boundaries of Competence;

(C) Section 3.01, Human Relations; and

(D) Section 3.03, Other Harassment.

The Board supported the draft language found in section 012:

012. REFERRALS. If, for any reason, a psychologist is unable to provide therapeutic services to a client or patient, the psychologist must refer the client or patient to other credential holders. This may be done by directing the client or patient to specific credential holders or to a list or directory of credential holders who may be able to provide professional assistance. The referral must be documented in the client or patient's record. Failure to comply with this standard is unprofessional conduct.

Lukin stated he would send the current proposed copy of 172 NAC 156 to APA and ASPPB.

10:49 a.m. Member of the public departed the meeting
