

Keep them smiling!

Every year, 50% of children entering kindergarten will have early childhood tooth decay. Tooth pain is one of the leading causes of missed school days and can keep your child from eating and talking pain-free.

The American Academy of Pediatric Dentistry recommends taking your child for a dental visit once every six months. You can prevent problems with their teeth and gums before they start and teach your child early that it's important to Watch Your Mouth.

