DATA: HPV Data Briefs

Human papillomavirus (HPV) causes most cervical cancers, as well as some cancers of the vagina, vulva, penis, anus, and oropharynx (cancers of the back of the throat, including the base of the tongue and tonsils). Population-based cancer registries do not routinely collect information about HPV status; however, the data can be used to monitor the number of cancers associated with HPV and estimate the number probably caused by HPV. CDC recently published 2 data briefs describing the incidence of HPV-associated cancers by different characteristics, including U.S. state, during the period 2010-2014.

<https://www.cdc.gov/cancer/hpv/statistics/index.htm>.

These HPV data brief were developed using U.S. Cancer Statistics Data, the official federal cancer statistics, which combine NCI SEER and CDC National Program of Cancer Registries (NPCR) data. Explore U.S. Cancer Statistics data tools and publications at www.cdc.gov/uscs.
